CURRENT

This is a toughie. With new adjunct instructors, a quick summary of SBCCD & SBVC maps, important locations, policies. With the returning adjunct, more on professional development opportunities, preferably more opportunities in the evenings and possibly on weekends. Transition to Canvas for me is impossible so perhaps more training in smaller groups?

CURRENT

We should spend less time in the auditorium hearing campus speakers welcoming comments and more on actual items that affect us and our students. This year was better as several SBVC leaders were not present (Pres, VP, etc.)

In my opinion, faculty can sign up for breakout section ahead, and the room just enough for such as one time. In my opinion, this is a classroom, some came late and the reporter had to explain again, it 's hard to focus.

Workshops and department meetings shouldn't have time conflicts. Parking permits should be available through the Welcome meeting since so many of us were busy with department meetings and workshops. Better food.

Q4

Please provide additional feedback on Adjunct Orientation. (department meeting, food, division meeting, etc)...What do you find most useful...

Our department head did not attend the meeting. We knew about it, but he did not. The Division meeting started earlier than shown and lasted only 30 mins. For me, everything that happened, except for parking permit could have been presented on a video presentation. How about an orientation video?

The overall campus meeting was an appropriate length. It was much too long in prior years.

CURRENT

food is good, very important to have division meeting before the semester start. Canvas training is very good.

I would strongly recommend different personnel representing the Police Department provide the presentation. Sgt. Tamayo might be a great PD supervisor, but he lacks severely in verbal presentation. "You know" every minute doesn't cut it. If we knew, we would not be there listening to him for information; and "ugh...." fairly close to constantly wastes my time; just say what is needed to be said.
