DISCUSSION TOPICS
Scott reviewed the "Role of the Curriculum Committee" Kay Ragan reminded the committee of normal committee procedure and suggested that approval of curriculum be handled in the following manner: someone makes a motion to approve a course, or group of courses, if they see fit, someone seconds if they see fit, there is a chance for discussion, then there is a vote. After discussion, it was decided that beginning November 7, 2005, the committee will meet on the currently scheduled Mondays from 2:00-3:30 in order to accomodate the conflict with the Budget committee. Scott alerted the committee that programmers from CurricUNET would be on campus to make a presentation to the committee members at the regular meeting 11/7, and to train the committee members on 11/8 during the hours of 1:00-2:30 and 3:00-4:30. The place is to be announced. There was concern that committee members should have to read an entire outline when only slight modifications had been made, such as a course number. There was a discussion as to what we should examine each time an outline comes through. Scott mentioned that sometimes there are changes made to the "content" and "student outcomes" and the person proposing the curriculum does not apprise the committee of the changes, so the committee does not know to look over those changes. Kay suggested that we add those items to the modifications section of the cover sheet. Scott added that when CurricUNET comes on-line, this will no longer be an issue, for the program will identify any changes. Queen added that in the past, faculty presented their own changes to the committee.
