

THART-166 Improvisational Acting
STUDENT LEARNING OUTCOMES

STUDENT LEARNING OUTCOMES:

Students should demonstrate a knowledge and appreciation of the historical, practical application, and creative aspects of Improvisational Acting. The students should upon completion of this course possess an awareness of the practical usage of this acting technique for modern day auditions for television, film, and stage. The students should have a capacity to interpret a scene during the rehearsal process utilizing improvisation as an acting tool that will develop a character, and increase their creative experience. Finally the students should possess the ability to demonstrate this technique during performance, not only for interaction with the other actors on stage, but also with an audience in a multi-cultural society.